SUMMARY

No complete catalogue in 2021 but a booklet of new titles to add to the 2020 catalogue. If you haven't got it already, you can order one from our distributing agent (EAN 9782354888138). You will discover the 43 new releases which we created with passion for all the young (and not so young) readers. The titles are classified according to age groups. Literary segments are coupled with a cross-reference to the pages in the 2020 catalogue. There, you will discover the other titles of the corresponding collections. Indexes at the end of the booklet will enable you to quickly find what you are looking for. The Gulf Stream team now wishes you a literary bon voyage 2021.

Kaimyō, a Name for the Dead - volume 1: The Butterflies of Kobé

Aut.: Bertrand Puard • ILL.: Marie Bergeron

Rieko investigates deaths that can't be accounted for in order to assign them a kaimyō. In Japanese lore, this is a name given to the deceased to honour them. When he arrives in Paris to perform his skills, he meets Namia, a young girl who might well be of help to him in his shadowy activities as apparently, she can communicate with the Beyond.

The Lovecraft Agency - volume 1 (To be released in August 2021)

Aut.: Jean-Luc Marcastel

Tracked down by mysterious pursuers because of the powers they possess, Ryan Marie and Serguei are rescued in the nick of time by Kali a young woman who takes them into a strange submarine. There they meet Doctor Savage who explains to them that abominable creatures which used to reign in the world much before life appeared on earth, are now emerging from their slumber. The three teenagers' powers might well be put to good use to send them back sleeping.

EDITO

The events we are about to relate took place in a bygone age and are yet still vivid in our memories. It was in 2020. The first hint of a dazzling spring had quickly chased off the hoarfrost of a carefree winter. We, the honorable members of our illustrious Gulf stream editorial family, were compelled to shut ourselves away in the nooks and crannies of our ancient manor following the spread of an mysterious plague.

Thus, withdrawn in our respective quarters, we toiled on, regardless, to release thrilling literature for young people into the world. Did the creaking of the floorboards above our heads betraying suspicious moves and the squeaking of doors being opened when nobody was supposed to be about, set our imaginations on fire? No-one ever knew. But our books got peopled with skeletons losing bones, ghosts haunting the corridors of a Scottish school or a young girl with the ability to hear the Dead. Each one of us wondered whether we were going crazy with no way of knowing whether the others were sharing the same doubts.

Was the enforced lockdown altering our sanity in any way?

The question remained unanswered.

Indeed the day we were released from lockdown, our thirst for escape wiped clean the anguish generated from our too long period of seclusion. Our books turned into faraway wind-swept islands, coloured coral reefs peopled with sparkling creatures, with a Country-from-Nowhere where one never grows up.

What a magnificent reunion that was! Our fears and dreams had given birth to a list of exceptional publications for 2021, people still talk to us about today. We were all happy despite the indescribable feeling nagging our souls: Who on earth had made the floor boards and doors of our family manor creak and squeak?

That question also remains forever unanswered.
