Skye and the Old Loner

Aut.: Régine Joséphine • Ill.: Alexandre Cochez

The inhabitants of the Borders archipelago are cloud-drivers, wind-riders... and lightning-hunters, Skye's very dream! But after the accident in which her father lost his mind (he who was the best hunter) the young dare-devil gave up on her dream. When the sea swallows the low Islands one day, the islanders are used to heavy storms and they don't really pay attention to it. No more than to Skye's father's crazy predictions. When the most precious tree of the island is vanquished by the mist, it's clear for Skye that she has no choice left. With the help of her friends and father, she has to find the last seed, their only hope....

Panic in Gemelia

Aut.: Betty Piccioli • Ill.: Nathanael Ferdinand

In the kingdom of Gemelia, everybody is born in pairs. Losing one's twin is a curse. Ivan a fearless and somewhat over-confident young boy can't just take for granted the mystery surrounding his brother's death: he investigates. EVERYTHING. One day he is urgently summoned to the palace to solve the enigma of the poisoned prince. A magic potion prepared by the witch of the enchanted forest is the only thing which can save him. The problem is, the witch's sister is evil incarnate and nobody has ever been able to tell one sister from the other. In a world where everything has its twin, it's hard to make head or tail of anything... Fortunately Ivan can count on Cornelius, a cranky unicorn that has lost its horn, to gather clues.

The Mechanical Islet

Aut.: Elie Darco • Ill.: Nancy Peña

Dino lives on an arid islet together with the Admiral –both the great orchestrator and creator of everything on it and Dino's grand-pa– and about thirty other islanders. Dino longs for elsewhere but elsewhere is remote, dangerous and polluted whereas, thanks to the mechanical devices designed by his grand-father, everybody's needs on the islet are met. One day, Dino and his friends find a strange animal although every living creature is supposed to have been wiped out. This discovery together with other unusual events grind to a halt the perfect functioning of life on the islet: the boy is puzzled and investigates. What he is about to find out will question all he thought he knew.

Nantes, XVIIIth century, height of the Triangular Trade.

Twelve-year old Henri is an orphan. Just like Maugette, he has been taken care of by Luigi's mother. Albeit destitute, the big-hearted Italian woman struggles to feed her loved-ones. The three children are used to pinching food from food stalls to survive. As they were dodging scoldings one day, they stumble upon Nyah a young black girl who is trying to run away from slave-traders. In a time when one's future depends on one's skin colour, the children have to learn to dream by looking beyond their differences.

In the village of Mount-Streuh rumours have it that strange creatures dwell in the lake and the ancient hotel of the mount. It is even said that a treasure is hidden in the Mount-Streuh Hotel itself. Olivia's parents certainly didn't know about that when they decided to purchase the old manor in order to renovate it. Forlorn ten-year-old Olivia, forced to move in this derelict and isolated place, will quickly find out that she possesses a special power: she is the only one who can see the families of monsters who live in the hotel rooms! As she becomes acquainted with a totally different universe, a team of unfriendly workers starts the renovation works. Olivia gets it, they are intent on destroying everything in order to lay their hands on the fabulous treasure of the legend! With the help of her friends, Olivia is set on driving them away... "A quick and delightful peck of a kiss but a kiss all the same. His conquering and cocky smile lingered on his face when he pulled away from me, his hand, my shoulder, his other hand, my hip. I was on cloud nine. I had already won."

Hardly had Lison set her eyes on him when she knew the handsome Damien would be the love of her life. That was love at first sight! When her best friend Barbara tells her she has taken ill and won't be able to feature and dance in Damien's clip, Lison can't believe her luck and doesn't think twice. It's her chance in a million to approach the singer! From now on, spying on Damien and taking speeded-up dancing lessons make up her daily schedule. Obsessed by the boy older than herself, fed false hopes, Lison neglects Barbara - whose health deteriorates- her family, her friends, and all that made her what she was up till now... until there is no coming back, or is there?

"As soon as they got into the hall, the young people noticed the drops of blood at the corners of Thomas's eyes on his picture. Samir clasped his lucky medal and stammered: - We've made the ghost angry... The consequences will be terrible!"

Sniggering heard in ventilation pipes, bloody handprints, objects which change places... The young hockey players have made up their minds: the Greilles ice-rink is haunted by the ghost of Thomas Grimbert who died on the ice thirty years earlier. Less superstitious, more focused, the figure ice-skaters get to open the gala, a much sought after honor. The usual rivalry between the athletes gets tougher: dirty tricks, insults, intimidations... And when a high school boy is found hanged in the dressing-rooms, fingers are pointed in every direction. Suicide? Old scores being settled? And what if Thomas was back to get his own back?

In a France undermined by the pernicious atmosphere of the post-Bataclan attacks, a lot of citizens have gathered that Saturday to make their voices heard. Apolline, JB and Harley have come to bring their support to the social uprising. Others want to testify like Samia a youtuber who is here to film and interview the demonstrators. There is also Aurélien, a helpless victim who finds himself engulfed into the chaos of a violent demonstration which turns into an ugly battle.

Through the deeply moving account of this infernal day, these different voices draw the portrait of a close-knit society ready to unite in its fight for freedom.

Living Backwards

Aut.: Maxime Fontaine

On his way home Yohann Massart, a young high school student, is murdered by three people wearing masks. Among them he identifies his girlfriend. But instead of dying his spirit goes back in time and lands in the body of an ordinary soldier of the first world war. Completely disoriented he abandons his battalion to cross France from east to west in order to come back to his native village. His head is riddled with questions: he would like to understand the reasons for this journey back to the dawn of the twentieth century. But his quest is impeded once again by a trio of murderers only intent on making him disappear.

The theme of reincarnation handled in an original way at the heart of a spine-tingling investigation: a first-to-last page turner.

The Blue Aches

Aut.: Christine Fêret-Fleury

It's been three years since Armelle has known it. She loves girls. Her only confidant is her blue diary. The solitary young girl is a bookworm who confides in it all her hopes and fears. She writes about Ines, a new classmate she feels attracted to. When the latter violently rejects her, Armelle rapidly becomes the target of her classmates' sneers and insults. Yet this is just one turning-point in her life which is definitely shattered one Sunday night. Indeed her parents find out about her secret and throw her out. She is only 16 when that night, she sees the door of her home brutally shut in her face. In the streets, with her diary as her sole possession, she has to learn how to survive alone... But is she really?

A read about the painful stages a heroine has to undergo in order to find who she is. To learn to stand her ground, never to give up, especially never to give up one's true nature.

She Used to Sit for Picasso

Aut.: Béatrice Égémard

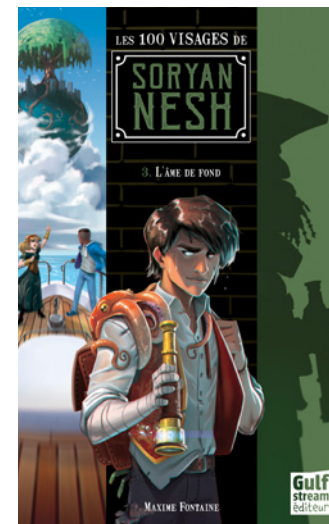

1905, Paris. 18-year-old Emile arrives in Paris in order to become a poet. He settles on the Butte Montmartre, in a funny studio, the Bateau Lavoir, a place brimming with artists. He meets his next door neighbours, Picasso and his friends Max Jacob and Guillaume Apollinaire. When a young flower girl is found dead after falling from a fourth floor window, suicide is the immediate verdict reached. Yet Emile, the aspiring poet, is not convinced. Together with Max Jacob and the pretty Virginie, he will untangle the sombre story of the young flower girl. Was she still in love with Louis the good-looking cad who has forsaken her? Who is her mysterious lover who has promised her a better life away from the backstreets of La Butte? From the cabaret of the Lapin Agile to the artists' studios, Emile will discover the other side of Bohemian life.

Discover the myths of ancient mythology, or rediscover them thanks to their feminine figures, these voices from the dark which get the place they are entitled to: at the heart of history.

Áriadnê

It has always been told how, as a naive young girl, I had agreed to help Theseus the Brave in exchange for his promise to marry me before being cowardly abandoned by my hero. Those who say that want to belittle me to the status of a mere pawn on the chessboard of the olympian gods. But what do they know about what really happened?

I am going to unravel my tale for you, telling you how I, the eldest daughter of the king of Crete, I saw my two brothers leave for Greece and only one come back, defeated and humiliated. How my father, Minos, blinded by rage, turned into a tyrant demanding from the Greek king that he make up for this in the worst of manners. How in the depths of a gigantic labyrinth an unnatural creature, half man half beast, was imprisoned. And how we, Ariadne, Phaidra and Pasiphae carried out our parts... or chose our own destinies.

There was a time when alchemists fed the High and Low Worlds with their marvellous inventions stemming from their magic and science. A time long gone since the Industrialists eradicated them. But before disappearing with all their knowledge the Alchemists are said to have hidden their fantastic treasure in a secret city...

The inhabitants of the Low World are going through a sombre and reactionary era while the High World, frozen since the extinction of the Alchemists, remain the out-of-reach dreamland everybody fantasizes about. Prudence is from the Low World but she lives like an outcast because she can see the future in her dreams. One night her village is ransacked by the pirates from the sky. Kidnapped and a forced recruit on board the Heliotrope, a flying vessel with a sinister reputation, the young orphan discovers a new universe, that of the sky. She gets to know the Pirates who presently tell her their secret: they have in their possession a clue which can lead them to a series of "keys" scattered all over the world which could well lead them back to the Alchemists' city...

Between Earth and Sky

Aut.: Agnès le Normand

Seventeen-year-old Melody thought she had lost it all. Her soul mate has left her forever. From now on she is alone on stage and hangs on to her violin as a tribute to their love. Her mother chooses to move far from the hectic Parisian life in the hope of instilling her with hope again. Buffeted between her dreams and reality this way and that, the young girl is confronted with the ghosts of her past while letting herself be carried away by an incredible chain of events: the encounter with a soul as tormented as hers together with a master class in London make her think all is not over for her yet. Could it be possible that fate should endow her with what she didn't dare dream of any longer?

A narrative which handles with great subtlety both the theme of loss and its ensuing period for reconstruction. A fine tribute to music, love and life.

On a slope of Mount Grey, on the edge of the Darkwoods is Malombre, a windswept village surrounded by the lament of howling wolves. There Red survives as a castaway because of a physical defect. Father François is one of the few who sympathize with her. For, according to rumours, you must in no way touch Red for fear of ending up branded with the mark of Evil like her. When she bleeds for the first time, it's a relief for the villagers to see her go according to the cursed pact which weighs on them. Following in the steps of other young girls before her, the girl they have nicknamed the Crimson One has to enter the woods in order to meet the ominous Grand-Mother. Is it salvation or a fate worse than death that awaits Red? No-one cares and no-one knows because none of the banished has ever come back.

A story where magic and horror merge and where innocence ends up inexorably in blood. A dark sensitive and spell-binding tale which isn't trying to spare anyone, least of all the reader.

The One Who Came From the Plains

Aut.: Charlotte Bousquet

Here is the story of Winona, the eldest daughter of the wind and the light and heir to ancient traditions she was forced to spit out like the worst of venoms, a halfblood in love with justice and liberty whose journey keeps crossing the road of the famous Steele men cowboys and mercenaries; for better or worse.

Where Angels Fall

Aut.: Charlotte Bousquet

Solange wouldn't miss a Parisian ball. Naive with a head full of dreams she agrees to marry Robert Maximilien. But her prince turns out to be a jealous tyrant. Insidiously Solange finds herself gasping for air. On the break out of the first world war, Robert is sent to the frontline. It's the opportunity for Solange to free herself from her husband's grip and start living at long last in a city where women gradually learn to do without men...

The Limping Girl

Aut.: Françoise Gard

Betrayed by Wilfred who abandoned her in the heart of the Highlands, and wounded at that, Aurore strives to protect herself from the others and from love as best she can. She is trying to piece her life together again, locking away her anger and anguish, her mind set on never again hearing of the one she once loved so much. But following disconcerting revelations and worrying signs, she has no choice but to trace him back.

Detroit

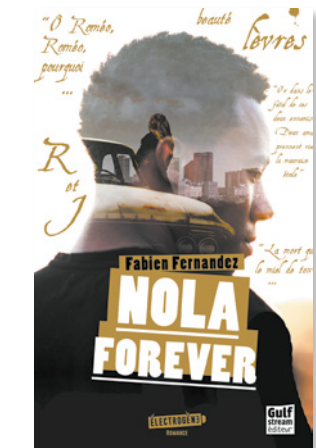

Aut.: Fabien Fernandez

Battered between gangsters' rivalries, foreclosures and dog fights, Detroit watches its inhabitants wandering on its metal and tar bone surface and wait for the one who will salvage it from its slow decrepitude. Ethan a young journalist from New York is fascinated by the city: he explores all the districts of Motor City to its very depths. Tyrell meanwhile, once high school over, longs to be independent. Both of them will team up to confront the gangs which have Detroit under their yoke. No-one will be spared.

THE NEW VIRAL SAGA OF THE YEAR

The Five-Throne Chronicles differ from the stereotypes of medieval fantasy with its original magic based on the relationship between Magi.

Chronique 1
HALF SOULS

Half Souls

Aut.: Antheleme Hauchecorne • ILL.: O'lee

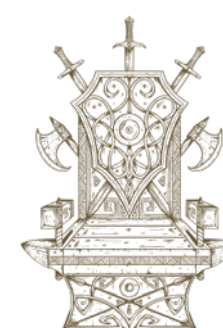

Magi's magic has but one principle: it's a two people's job. Liutgarde knows that much. Yet she ran away from Ortaire, the husband she had been matched with, thus giving up her power. Banished in the Northern territories she would be dead but for the nomads and Rollon, a magus with a tortured mind. In love with each other, Liutgarde and Rollon travel with their community in horse-drawn caravans through the hostile forest of Sylveree, a former kingdom of the Winter Fairies. But the order of this day-to-day existence is going to be upset, forcing them to settle old scores with their former lives. For, in this world, everything comes out and has to be answered for. Will their power and love be strong enough to protect them?

Addictions

Aut.: Sylvie Baussier • ILL.: Aurélien Boudault

The consumption of tobacco, cannabis, alcohol together with the over use of screens, in particular to play video games, are open doors towards dependence even addiction. Several characters will make you aware of the ensuing risks and consequences and make you realise that the help and support of close friends or relatives is essential.

The Star-Spangled Sky

Aut.: Olivier Sauzereau • ILL.: Yves Besnier

A book to help all curious minds to discover astronomy and learn to identify the stars, galaxies and planets of our universe. The maps of the sky, precisely outlined by the author, an astronomy enthusiast, are printed in fluorescent ink. They plunge the young reader in the very heart of the world of stars and, season after season, guide them through the constellations.

GULF STREAM READING COMMITTEES

TEENS

YOU ARE BETWEEN 7 AND 17 AND YOU WOULD LIKE TO RECEIVE AND GIVE YOUR OPINION ON PUBLICATIONS TO COME?

In 2020 there is a new on line interface available to become a member of our reading committee! More choices, more reader-friendly features and points to add up at each validated reading review in order to treat yourself to the books in our catalogue at very interesting prices. How to get there? Meet us on the following site: www.gulfstream.fr right from January 2020 and you will find out all you need to get registered.

BOOKSHOP OWNERS

YOU WOULD LIKE TO DISCOVER THE PREVIEWS AND GIVE YOUR OPINIONS ON THE SELECTIONS OF MANUSCRIPTS AND BOOK COVERS?

Send a mail to jerome.bernez@gulfstream.fr, mentioning your name, first name, bookshop, mail, post addresses and phone number. In order to better select the manuscripts which would best correspond to your expectations, be kind enough to indicate your favorite genres (historical, fantastic, science fiction, fantasy, realistic etc) and the age reader you wish to target.

www.gulfstream.fr

NOW'S YOUR TURN!

You feel like joining our reading committee, handing in your manuscript, sending your book, organizing events around our titles and/or authors, getting a review copy or simply meeting us, asking a question or giving your opinion? Couldn't be simpler, just go there:

contact@gulfstream.fr

You are also welcome to come and meet us in our offices in Nantes, during book fairs or on social media (and most likely on the coast in summer).

PRESS RELATIONS

You would like to receive Gulf stream books:

You are a journalist:
 Send a mail to angela.lery@gulfstream.fr

You organize book fairs? For juries, for prizes:
 Send a mail to jerome.bernez@gulfstream.fr

You are a blogger, booktuber:

EDITO

To all the passionate of reading,
all bookworms,
to our faithful readers and those who want to discover us...

Gulf stream edition is happy proud and honoured to present their new catalogue. Not only because it is beautiful but because it has been put together by a crew who is not afraid to stick their necks out. Just think: in order to plunge into the 6000 projects that the tides relentlessly threaten to engulf, all our crew members are waterproof. It is no wonder then that in these conditions, we have found out more than 50 gems, real ones, which shine in the sun and even in the moonlight in clear weather. And so we have illuminated, crimped and polished them up so as to turn them into objects we call "books". But you know very well, and we know you know, that it is a little more than that. It means authors we manhandle so they do their best, illustrators we heckle so they find the vision to fit the idea, printers who can't bear the sight of us any longer because we put too much on their plates: all the mottling, varnishing, embossing and the likes, the routine so to speak. A big thank you then to all these creators who come on board ours hip, be it for a short or long-term cruise.

But let's come back to our 2020 catalogue if you please. Beautiful it is as we said earlier, but did we mention its revolutionary concept? We didn't? In that case, know that you sail through it with as much ease (thanks to its contents, colour codes, index, thematic markers, age groups) as you love to get lost in it. And as a supplement to it, we have launched our website with a whole bunch of regularly updated information.

So if you feel like discovering new horizons in 2020, join our devoted crew and let's sail together through oceans of books.
Now all on board!
