- The fictional adventures of the apprentice of the famous fortune teller Marie-Anne Lenormand are packed with historical anecdotes and brilliantly blend esotericism and criminology.

Paris, 1805.

As apprentice to the illustrious fortune-teller Marie-Anne Lenormand, Louise juggles her duties in her mentor's divination practice with her partnership with Inspector Brandicourt, for whom the young girl's ability to read facial expressions is invaluable. On all fronts, she struggles to make room for Paul, the kindly tailor's apprentice. Her day-to-day life takes a turn for the worse when she is contacted by Clément, an intrepid journalist, who wants to shed light on a murky affair: two low-class women have been found lifeless in a terrible state... They appear to have been poisoned, although their wounds suggest a knife crime. These events were hushed up by the police on the orders of the Prefect, who wanted to shine in the eyes of the Emperor. Outraged by this injustice, Louise set out on the trail of the murderer, soon dubbed in the press 'the new Marquise de Brinvilliers', in reference to a famous poisoner guillotined over a century ago.
